The multitalented Tim Noah has written both words and music and provided the illustrations for this little children's book COUNTRY STORE. Tim is an award-winning composer, producer and recording artist, having appeared on HBO, the Disney Channel and the BBC. Though he has travelled broadly he has settle[d] in Washington State where he plans to continue this charming series of children's books.

The illustrations are as enchanting as the story and the music as we see a little lad with a nickel goin' to the country store with his dog and invites his friend Bob who is eager to go if he gets help with his chores - farm business galore! But off they go on the long journey to the country store when friend Jim comes along on his bike and offers them a ride. Along they proceed, encounter a mountain and a short cut. Jim assures them the mountain is no problem but it is an arduous trip and they all are pooped when they reach the top and realize the store isn't there. Back down they go with great speed - the bike has no brakes and they run into a cow! But when they pick themselves up and dust themselves off they are at the country store! Inside they meet their friends Sally and Merrilee - and the only one with money is our friend with a nickel!

Complete fun with excellent visuals, music and story and rhyme that children (and most likely adults) will use frequently. Highly recommended. Grady Harp, July 15

This is a wonderful story, and paired with the music is very delightful! This book is a must have for any Tim Noah fan and if you have not heard of Tim Noah you will soon be a fan. Tim really knows how to tell a story and you can download the song that goes with this story and listen as you read along. The illustrations, all drawn by Tim, are full of whimsy. I highly recommend this book.

What a special treat this little book is, and the music alone is happy, upbeat and great for sing-alongs. Tim's voice is friendly. The music is fiddle, banjo, bass and guitar and is not overpowering at all. He laughs, he plays sound effects and makes this story a fun story for young children.

A boy and his dog Arlo head out to the country store on a hot summer day with a nickel in his hand, kicking a can along the way. His friends Bob and Jim on his bike join him on the walk. The journey with Bob and Jim is the story, as they get themselves in some trouble, but it's a fun trouble that can get young kids laughing. This is a fun story for all ages, young and old.

"Life is full of wonderful adventures, keep dreaming and believing, travel safe and keep on keeping on."
